These documents must be attached to the application:

Certain documents must always be attached to an application for exemption from estate tax.

Public institutions must enclose:

- a declaration from the institution's management about how the inheritance will be used;
- a declaration that the accountant will ensure that the inheritance is used as described;
- a declaration from the granting authorities that the inheritance will not reduce the operating grant;
- will and codicils.

Churches and parish councils must enclose:

- a declaration from the church's parish council on the specific purposes for which the inheritance will be used;
- a declaration from the diocesan authority that it will ensure that the inheritance is used for the purposes stated by the parish council;
- will and codicils.

Charities, foundations etc. must enclose:

- the most recent accounts;
- statutes;
- will and codicils.
- Foreign institutions etc. domiciled in EU/EEA countries must enclose documentation that they are approved as charitable or non-profit institutions in their home country. The documentation may, for example, be a declaration of exemption from income tax.
- Applicants outside the EU/EEA must contact the Danish Tax Agency.
